PROFILE SUMMARY:

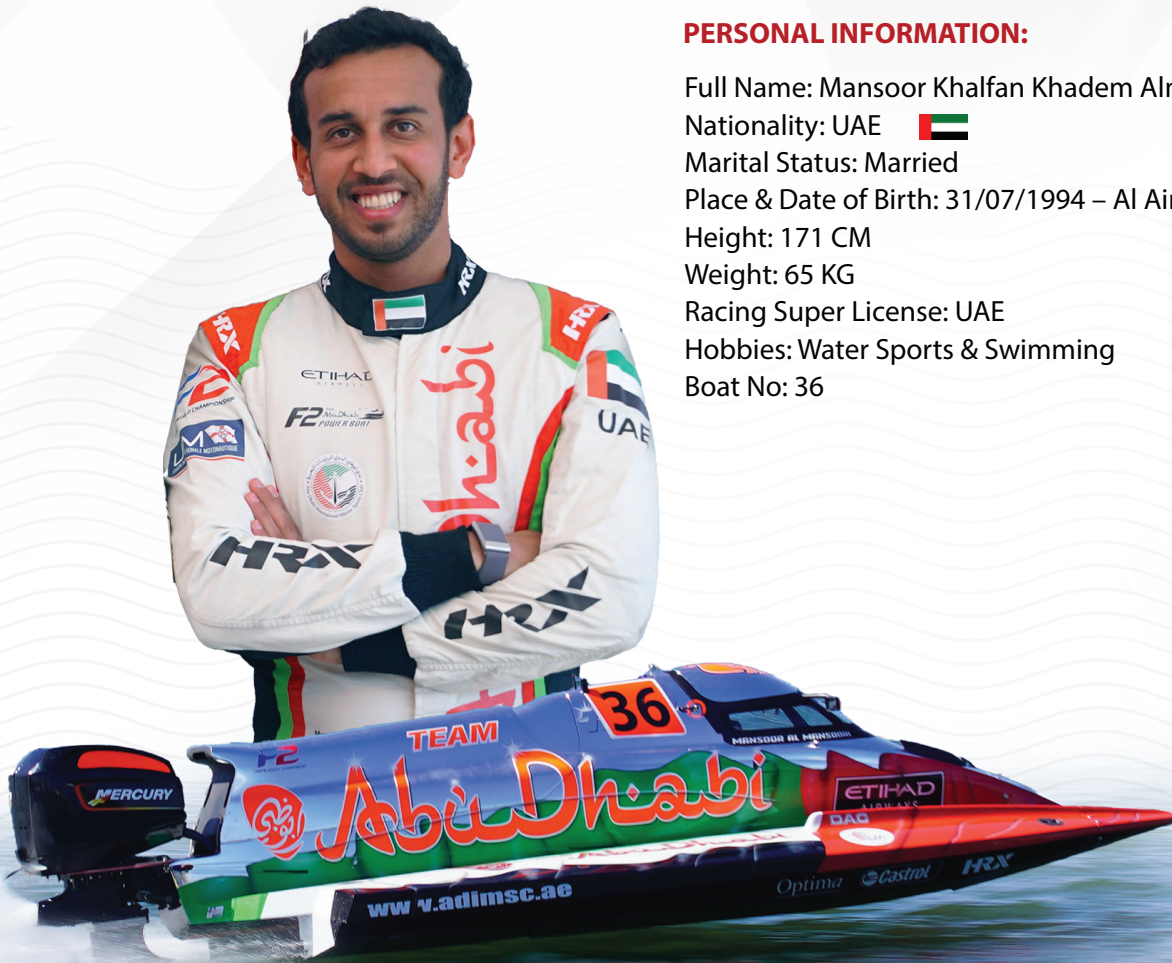

Mansoor Al Mansoori's rise through the ranks of watersports has been well documented. Hailing from a large family, Al Mansoori has worked his way up through to be one of the finest racers in the world.

After spending a formative few years in other forms of watersports, Al Mansoori got a taste of powerboat racing in 2015 when he entered the F4 championships. However, with national duty and his job as an IT professional taking up much of his time, Al Mansoori could only spend his first full season in the sport the following year.

But 2017 was a breakthrough season for the employee from ADNOC as he switched his full attention to powerboating. The success was instant as the 23-year-old Al Ain-born boy completed the entire F4 season with the world championship in his lap. The highlight of the season was when Al Mansoori grabbed his first win in Race One of the F4-S Championships in Harbin, China in August 2017. In the second race the following day, He slipped by a couple of spots, but managed to get a podium finish and along with it, the World Title.
